(Altoona, PA - December 18, 2008) – Altoona based software and services company Intelmarx, LLC opened their first international office this week in Ottawa, Canada; Intelmarx Canada, Ltd.

"We are thrilled to make this announcement," says George Sackandy, CEO of Intelmarx, LLC. "The focus of our Canadian subsidiary will be on non-profits and political parties, and our first Canadian client will be Volunteer Canada."

Volunteer Canada is a national non-profit that fosters volunteerism and recognizes volunteer involvement as essential to building healthy, quality communities. Volunteer Canada supports volunteer centers throughout Canada and works with for-profit companies to establish volunteer programs.

The Canadian subsidiary, Intelmarx Canada, Ltd. will be headed up by Canadian native Nhanci Wright. "With the help from Ms. Wright we are anticipate acquiring about 30 clients in the next 12 months," Sackandy explains. "Ms. Wright is a well-respected consultant in the communications and development and her years of consulting work will help foster new and old relationships."

Ms. Wright founded her own consulting practice in 2001 providing clients in the public and private sectors with smart and effective strategic communications and public relations campaigns. Her development experience includes work on capital campaigns, major
